Board of Trade Meet

A meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the council chamber on Monday evening last. The following were present:

W. L. Ouimet, president; H. A. Parks, secretary; A. Morrison, H. Gate, H. G. Goodeve, F. W. Davies, L. G. Graham, E. Disney, W. Pearson, C. P. Willmott.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

A communication was read from the Farmers' Association re reciprocity, and after some considerable discussion on the subject the reciprocity arrangement now before the Dominion House was carried unanimously and it was decided to send the resolution to the Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of Finance. Several communications were received, re advertising from different firms, which were referred to the Publicity Committee with power to act.

The president spoke at length of the interview with Premier Sifton at Macleod, and it was decided to communicate with the other boards of trade asking them to co-operate with them in securing a good road through the Pass.

TOWN COUNCIL MEETS

Deputation from the Board of Trade. Several Committees Report.

A meeting of the Town Council was held in the council chamber on Tuesday last. Present, Mayor Cameron, Councillors Clark, Holmes, James, and Morrison.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. Several committees reported on the different matters they had on hand.

Councillor McDonald said that he had asked for rates of insurance and had received one reply, and was waiting for others and would report further.

Councillor James reported visiting the house of Mrs. Honenick, also that he found that she had been ill for two weeks and had a large family. He recommended that the taxes which had been paid, be refunded.

Clark - Morrison - That the recommendation be adopted. Carried. The secretary to return the amount and alter assessment roll.

DEPUTATION OF BOARD OF TRADE

On motion of councillors James and Holmes, That deputation of Board of Trade then present be received. Carried. The deputation, which consisted of the president, W. L. Ouimet, and H. G. Goodeve, T. W. Davies, C. P. Willmott. The president addressed the council.

ON PUBLICITY

stating that the board of trade was seeking to advertise the resources of Coleman and bring industries, which would be a benefit to the town. The board of trade had well considered the matter and what was best to be done, but that they were not overburdened with funds, and as every ratepayer would be benefitted by an industry being brought to the town, thought that they should help to bear the cost. The amount mapped out to be spent up to the present in the shape of advertising was $60.00. But he asked the council to place $200 at their disposal.

Councillor Holmes said that he had listened with pleasure to the president's address and thought that publicity was a proper thing to be done. He was disappointed at the modest amount asked for, viz., $200.00, which seemed inadequate for the purpose and that he was in favor of a larger grant.

Councillor McDonald was pleased to note that there were others who took a vital interest in the welfare of the town, and was heartily in favor of the proposition.

Councillor Morrison said that it was a step in the right direction, and he believed in granting the board of trade who had taken such an active interest in the welfare of the town, and he supported this matter.

Councillor James also thought that the amount asked for was a most modest one and supported the grant, and he felt inclined to put the board of trade on the back and tell them to go ahead with their good work.

Mayor Cameron said he could not understand why every councillor was not a member of the board of trade. Everyone in interested in the town should belong to that body. He was in favor of the proposition. If industries were started here they would bring in at least hundreds of people to the town, and in that way property would be in demand and therefore increase in price.

Councillors McDonald-Morrison - That the request of the board of trade for $200 for publicity be granted. Carried.

Mr. Ouimet thanked the council for the consideration they had given the deputation and for granting their request.

HEALTH COMMITTEE REPORT

Councillor James stated that Dr. Porter's report was a mild one to what they found, but was pleased to note that the conditions had been improved, and that the medical health officer's order had been obeyed.

Morrison - Holmes - That report of Health Committee and Sanitary Inspector be adopted. Carried.

WATCH COMMITTEE'S REPORT FOR MONTH OF FEBRUARY

To Mayor and Council.

During the past month two persons, viz., Joe Rolick and John Kubin were fined $5.50 each for being drunk and disorderly.

The brass checks ordered in January for dog and dray licenses have not yet been received, but Messrs. Goodeve have the matter in hand.

John Sergeant resigned his position as constable, etc, and the duties have been taken over by B. Hall, who reports the town having been very quiet, and that there has been no complaints from any of the residents. The clothes, cap, etc of the late constable were found with a little alteration to be fitted for B. Hall, and we sanctioned a charge of $2.50 for the alterations, so that the change in officers has cost the town very little.

Licenses amounting to $424.25 have been paid in during the month, and I have instructed the clerk to prepare a list of licenses outstanding, with a view of bringing same before the council for their consideration.

McDonald - James - That report of Watch Committee be adopted. Carried.

BOARD OF WORKS REPORT

Councillor Holmes reported that a culvert on 4th avenue and a bridge in Slav town should be built.

Councillor Clark asked about Dunmore avenue.

Councillor Morrison stated that two men had been working there all that day, and that the conditions there had been improved.

James - Clark - That the matter re culvert on 4th ave. and bridge in Slav town be left in the hands of the board of works committee to act as they thought best. Carried.

Clark - Holmes - That the matter of furnishing the coils of the gaol be left to Constable Hall.

A petition for curfew was put in by C. P. Willmott, and a by-law will be drawn up.

Dance at McLaren's Camp

After such a severe winter and with the return of spring we cannot refrain from expressing our pleasure at such a delightful termination to a successful winter's operation in logging at Peter McLaren's camp, No. 1, where Mr. George Ritchie, Manager, entertained over forty of his friends, residents of Coleman, to a dance on Friday evening, sending sleighs and taking the entire party out to the camp. Mrs. Ritchie and Mrs. Hall, in a most charming manner, received the guests.

The dining room had been turned into a ball room, lighted with lamps and lanterns, and presented a homelike and welcome appearance. The entire party, including the men of the camp, enjoyed themselves dancing until 1 o'clock. They were then entertained to one of the most sumptuous suppers they ever enjoyed. In fact it was the unanimous opinion of the party that bushmen live well, and gave a very different opinion to that generally held of lumbermen. The men were gentlemanly in every particular and good dancers as well.

After the supper all joined hands in singing "Auld Lang Syne," and passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Ritchie, all singing, "For he's a jolly good fellow." The party then broke up and were driven to their homes, all saying it was one of the best entertainments they had been to in Coleman, and expressing the wish that something like this should be done in the near future they might have another as enjoyable a time. "So say all of us."

HOCKEY

TABER VS. COLEMAN

The Hockey Match played on Wednesday night was watched by a great crowd, the largest number that has ever turned out. Unfortunately the ice at one end was very soft and nothing like good hockey could be played. Consequently it would be unfair to criticise the game. In the first half when Coleman had the worst end Taber scored 2. The 2nd half was equally divided, 1-1. The result was Taber 3, Coleman 1. After the match the Taber boys had a banquet at the Coleman hotel, and a very enjoyable time was spent.

HAD THROAT TROUBLE SINCE CHILDHOOD

All Treatments Failed. Relieved by Peruna.

Mrs. Wm. Hohmann, 2184 Lincoln Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I suffered with catarrh of the bronchial tubes and had a terrible cough ever since a child. I would sit up in bed with pillows propped up behind me, but still the cough would not let me sleep. I thought and everybody else that I had consumption."

"So reading the papers about Peruna I decided to try, without the least bit of hope that it would do me any good. But after taking three bottles I noticed a change. My appetite got better, so I kept on. Never discouraged. Finally I seemed not to cough so much and the pains in my chest got better and I could rest at night."

"I am well now and cured of a chronic cough and sore throat. I cannot tell you how grateful I am, and I cannot thank Peruna enough. It has cured where doctors have failed and I talk of Peruna wherever I go, recommend it to everybody. People who think they have consumption better give it a trial."

Cured Awful Ringworm

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dreadful scalp trouble that the doctors called ringworm. They attended the— Hospital as out-patients for a year. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better under the treatment. They used to cry with the tormenting itching, and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff. "About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used plenty of Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used only about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so ill after their three years of suffering that I had to send one away to a convalescent home as soon as she was cured, but now she is home, well and strong. My younger girl was away from school nine months with the disease. I am very grateful to Cuticura and for their children's sake I hope other mothers will try it. The Cuticura Soap I will always use for it makes the hair so lovely."

MONKEY LAND.

Where Armies of Gibbering Apes Make Life Miserable.

If at any time you should happen to be in India, just remember to let the monkeys alone, for to kill one would mean to get yourself very cordially disliked by the Bonasas, whose religion forbids them to take the life of any creature. As a result, the people of India are overrun by a great many animals against which they can make but a feeble resistance, the monkey in particular being a real tyrant.

The shops of the cities are without doors and windows, and whatever is offered for sale is exposed to the open air. The monkeys are always at hand watching their opportunity and if the merchant absent himself for a moment instantly the nimble apes are helping themselves to anything they fancy.

On one occasion the streets of Benares, the sacred city of India, had become so overrun with these impudent little plunderers that the merchants held a meeting and decided that something must be done. Inasmuch as their religion forbade them to kill the monkeys, they decided to banish the pests.

The streets were surrounded and invaded, the monkeys were all captured and placed in cages. Then they were taken to a large forest at a considerable distance from the city and freed in the middle of the trees. The scammers into the branches as if they were having a very good time; and there the merchants left them and returned to their shops, rejoicing that they could not find in peace. That evening there was a rare sight in Benares. Into the streets, just at dusk, there came a great capering army of apes. They were the monkeys of Benares, who had found their way home from the forest, into which they had been banished, and, though they must have been very tired from traveling so far, they were in the best of spirits, reaching home again was so great that they gambled like a troop of picnic children coming home from a picnic.

Being town bred monkeys, they had not enjoyed country life. Next day they were all over their old perches, raiding the food shops with renewed and eager appetites and greatly refreshed impudence.

The Effects of Arsenic.

"You no doubt have observed the illly white complexion of some women. These women are suffering years of their lives for that beautiful skin by the use of arsenic," said Dr. V. Duval, a chemist, of Manchester, Eng. "It is a well-known fact that thousands of women in all countries of the world use the poison in small quantities to bleach their skin. It is an effective means of whitening and clearing the complexion, but the complexion of the skin will accumulate in his system in the course of four or five years."

"Be an accumulative poison it often takes that length of time to see the results of the drug. Then the user may complain of no being able to control his fingers or toes. Subsequently he loses control of his hands and arms. Arsenical poisoning is the result."

"Five years ago in Manchester there was an epidemic of paralysis. Several thousands of persons were stricken. Several hundred died and the medical profession of England made a thorough investigation of the malady and traced it to beer. The investigators discovered that the brewers were using a glucose in the brewing of their product which was found to contain a small quantity of arsenic. This drug, imbibed in small quantities in beer, had gradually accumulated in the bodies of thousands of persons, had impoverished their blood and left a great percentage of them helpless."

Too Expensive to Eat.
Mr. George Graves, who is appearing with such success on the variety stage in "Koffo of Bond Street," in London, is an enthusiastic sportsman, and recently had a day's shooting in Norfolk. Missing his train back he endeavored to catch it at Cambridge by motor-car, but failed, owing to the bursting of a tire. In order to appear at the theatre he was compelled to charter a special train from the University town. Mr. Graves' remark, as he alighted from his expensive conveyance at Liverpool street and handed his man a brace of partridges, was very characteristic of him, "Get these birds stuffed, they come too high to eat."

Ambassador as Mountaineer.
Mr. James Bryce, the British ambassador at Washington, who was recently granted an audience by the King, was born in Belfast seventy years ago. His father was Scotch and his mother Irish. He is credited with the ability to speak—or acquire—every known language. He has talked with African kings at the councils; has banqueted with the Dyaks; has climbed some of the highest mountains in the United States; has stood on the top of Mount Ararat—the first man since Noah—has been in Russia, in India, and Japan, and knows nearly every part of the British Empire, even to the Fiji Islands.

Prevaricator.
The word prevaricator is from the Latin and originally meant a strider with distorted or misshapen legs. In the Roman courts of law the expression was applied to one who in a suit was discovered to be in collusion with his opponent to compass some dishonesty. As falsehood was the necessary part of such a performance, the word by and by came to have the significance at present attached to it.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper

Probably no one had more ready wit than Sir Frank Lockwood, the lawyer. He was a tall man, and an unruly member of his audience once called out to him in the middle of a speech, "Go it telecopter!" "My friend is mistaken in applying that term to me," said Sir Frank, quietly. "He ought to claim it for himself, for though he cannot draw me out, I think I can both see through him and shut him up."

GOOD HEALTH FOR RUN DOWN MEN

If You Are Weak and Easily Tired Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Anemia is a state into which one falls because of lack of blood, or because the blood is poor, weak and watery. The man or woman who has not enough blood is pale, languid, easily tired and easily depressed, and gives victims to all the epidemic maladies, because the whole body is weakened and unable to resist the invasion of disease. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best remedy in the world for the cure of anemia, and all its attendant miseries. They make the blood rich, red and pure, thus bringing health and strength to weak, despondent men and women. We do not know of a single case of anemia where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have failed to cure it given a fair trial. Mr. John Hastings, Venn, Sask., was a victim of this trouble and found new health through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He says: "I was working on a railway driving a team and found myself gradually running down. I did not pay much attention to it at first, but soon I began to lose my appetite and it was a trial to get through my day's work. I got medicine from the doctor on the works, but it did not help me, and finally I got so bad I—told the foreman I would have to quit. He told me to lose hope, that he would get some medicine that would soon make me all right. That night he went to town and brought me three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had not taken more than two boxes when I began to feel better, and after I had used five boxes I was as well and strong as ever, and could do a day's work with any man on the job. I may just add that before I began taking the Pills I was so run down that I weighed only 122 pounds, and while taking them I gained 22 pounds. I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and strongly recommend them to all run-down men."

You can get these Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Montreal Business Men re Reciprocity

Business men, manufacturers and others in Montreal are very anxious to obtain the views of the large banking houses on the reciprocity question. Sir Edmond Walker, president of the Bank of Commerce, has already come out strongly against the proposed agreement, it is true; but that was in Toronto, and Sir Edmund did not give any specific reasons for the stand he has taken. Sir Edward Clouston, president of the Bank of Montreal, has now been asked, not in the interests of any one particular branch of trade or commerce, but in the interests of the Dominion of Canada as a whole, to either make a statement for publication or to address a gathering called for the purpose. He has not yet consented to do either, but he will likely be persuaded to speak at a special meeting of the board of trade on March 8th.

Strange as it may seem reciprocity talk has not disturbed the financial world one way or the other; that is although there is a great deal of comment and chatter, money is still moving along the regular channels, and stock are soaring or falling as the case may be in much the same way as they would on a quiet summer's day. Last week, it is true, was rather dark in some quarters, but that was owing rather to affairs in the United States than to reciprocity agitation. Reciprocity is a freak. Frank Jones in British Columbia, which people of that province say will be ruined if the pact goes through, are selling their shares at a low price. Massey stock, the new company which is turning out farming implements and which has just been placed on the Toronto exchange, has jumped about ten points, and at one stage of the game was as high as thirty-three. And there was much doubt in the minds of the farm implement men as to reciprocity.

Spring of Water Found Flowing From Under Altar in Montreal

The announcement that a miraculous spring has been discovered bubbling forth from under the altar of the Church of St. Clotilde has brought thousands from far and near on visit to the church. An altar, on which a new statue of the Blessed Virgin had recently been placed, suddenly required the attention of a plumber. Investigation showed the spring of pure water bubbling from the earth. A similar occurrence was reported some time ago from a church of the same name in Leu, France. It is said since the discovery of the spring two people, who were suffering from different ailments, were cured instantly by the use of the water.

Parishioners of St. Alban's Church Meet.

A meeting of the congregation of St. Alban's church was held on Sunday evening last in the I. O. O. F. hall. Churchwarden Neil presided. He read a communication from the Bishop of the diocese, who offered to send a clergyman to take up the work here, providing the parishioners could raise a stipend of $800. It seemed to be the wish of those present that the vicar should spend his whole time in Coleman, and after considerable discussion it was decided that the churchwarden should write the Bishop and explain the condition of things at present, and that they would wait a few weeks and see if there was a strike or not.

Lille Notes

Delinquent police enquiries are being instituted at Lille in connection with the disposal of a shipment of freight, consisting of a large quantity of dry goods, etc., which ought to have been delivered at Hillcrest some six months ago. Several persons are alleged to be implicated in the affair and serious developments are anticipated in the course of a few days.

Expecting a Dividend

Toronto, Mar. 1.—The Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. shareholders who have been disappointed at not receiving the announcement of a dividend are looking for some declaration from the management at the annual meeting to-day.

Elias Rogers the president who has been in the West for five weeks, inspecting the company's properties has returned with a hopeful view of the outlook. He says the new trade agreement may open a market of 700 or 800 tons of coke a day to the producers of Western Canada.

THE END OF HIM

Did you ever hear the story about one Jules Labarge, Who occupied the dock upon a murder charge.

The evidence was clear—quite beyond a doubt;

Guilty was the verdict—the crowd just raised a shout.

"The jury have found you guilty," said the judge with solemn air.

So make peace to meet your God, for I am going to send you there.

Hanging seems to good, tho', and besides the cost of rope, But you must surely lose your life, so don't put ought on rope,

The electric chair's a luxury, and the price we cannot stand.

The judge then took a paper and his lung; he did expand,

And in spite of the prisoner's screeches,

He read him one of Phillips' speeches.

Nuff said
He's dead!

THE MAN AND THE HOUR

And the Sin of Omission Alike Charged Against Himself.

By KEITH GORDON.

Elmer for the first time in her life was looking the future squarely in the eye. Hitherto she had been content to nibble at life, munching away contentedly enough, satisfied with the joy of the moment. And she might have been so for an indefinite time had it not been for the occurrence of the 3d of June.

New Year's day is significant only because then, by common consent, time moves up a number. This particular June 3 made an indelible impression on Elmer's mind because on that day she began to be thirty-two—began at the very beginning, of course, but still she began.

"I shall say I'm thirty-one all this year anyway," she announced defiantly to that other self that receives our dearest confidences. "It's such a bad form to say you're thirty-one years and two months old, or whatever it may happen to be. And if I have to write it I'll make it thirty-one in round numbers—not even thirty-one plus." All of which, as the reader can see, was very unscrupulous.

However, as she found, by far the worst thing about beginning to be thirty-two was the fact that you couldn't forget it. The harder you tried the better you remembered it.

Well, what if I am? This was the remark that our heroine slung into space when, after a week of torment, she sat down with her chin resting on her hands to face the thing out. "What if I am? So are plenty of other girls—women, I mean. Alice is thirty. Mary thirty-one. Mabel twenty-eight."

She paused in her enumeration, struck by the thought that if these friends were married! Matrimony was a subject to which she had given the minimum of thought. She supposed she'd come to it some time, but she was in no hurry to enter the matrimonial no-longer as there was pleasant browsing to be had outside.

When she had thought of it at all it had seemed to manifest a tremendous round of housekeeping that resulted in three perpendicular lines just over the nose, a memorandum of worry that she nervously determined to avoid as long as possible. But now that she was beginning to be thirty-two the thing was different.

Could it be, she asked herself, that she had made a mistake after all and that those three incline lines were as much of an honor as an officer's bar? Could it be that there was a point when one began to be thirty-two, for instance, when becomingly demanded that one should lay aside "Miss" just as it required that one should stop wearing pink?

She faced her plight with a stiff upper lip, realizing that she had no one but herself to blame. There had been a number of men—the mischievous dimple at the corner of her mouth danced into sight for a second at the thought of how many—who had done their best to stop her in what she now recognized for the first time her mad career. She had declined their offers, but with a certain royal carelessness that recked not of possible dark hours to come. When did any woman burn to the belief in the divine right of queens ever force despatchment?

She had inadvertently "lived over" as she had once heard it quaintly phrased. There was no doubt about it, she was an old maid. She had been alone in all its brutal truth, scorned such euphemisms as "spinster" and "bachelor woman."

"You're an old maid—just a plain old maid," said audibly. But it sounded like a joke—like one of those things too bad to be true. She would probably wake up after a bit to find that she had been married since her eighteenth year and had a son ready to enter college and a daughter about to make her debut.

No such happy awakening came, however, and with desperate philosophy she decided that since she was an old maid she would enter into the role for all it was worth. At least she would avoid the error of being kittenish.

Little by little her plainest gown was brought into requisition. Certain little graces and frivolities of the toilet were one by one abandoned. The kindly asked Alice, her closest friend, to teach the children to call her "auntie," a thing which she had hitherto forbidden under the penalty of a sudden death to the child that should first be guilty of it.

"What is the matter with you?" gasped Alice, with a stare of amazement. "And what have you been doing with your hair, and why are you wearing that ugly old dress, with all the handsome things that you have?" "I'm just wearing the things that I used to my age before the dear friends have a chance to point them out to me," was the answer. And that night her friend confided to her husband, with thoughtful regret, that Elmer was becoming a regular old maid.

Another of her friends and comrades, Max Anderson, also noticed the subtle change. "Maxie had been a sort of brother and sister friendship of long standing. For years he had scolded and criticized and teased her. The one thing that he hadn't done was to make love, and Elmer had long since given up trying to make him.

"Haven't you ever been in love, Max?" she had asked him once, with genuine curiosity in the gray eyes that had been more than one man's undoing. A dull flush came up into his face, and he looked at her strangely.

"Yes," he answered shortly. "I have. Beautiful night, isn't it?" she went on after a moment, and there was a touch of mockery in his voice that made the questioner wince. After that she asked him no more.

"What's up?" he demanded, surveying her critically as she came down to receive him one evening with re-remuneration speaking from every line of her plain gown and her smooth, parted hair. "Is it some sort of lay sackcloth and ashes? What particular sin are you mourning?"

"The great sin of omission!" she answered demurely as they sat down opposite each other. But he looked incredulous. He had not known her fifteen years for nothing.

"Commission, you mean," he said dryly, with an air of remembering things. "No omission! I'd tell you about it, only you're never any comfort to a person. You're just like a stone. Max, I don't know how I've endured you so long!"

He turned his eyes lazily upon her with a look long, steady, inscrutable. Neither spoke, but after a moment Elmer, with a beautifully assumed air of perfect ease, sought refuge in a study of the pattern of the carpet.

"Possibly I may tell you some time," he said, with a nonchalant laugh. "But go on; let me hear what's the trouble. You always tell me eventually."

Yes, in fact, she did. It was the beauty of Max that he made you like and hate him simultaneously. But no matter what you felt you wanted him, and you usually confided in him. That at least had been Elmer's experience, and it was being repeated for the hundredth time now. She wanted to tell him; she always wanted to tell him everything. She leaned forward suddenly, with a childish bid for sympathy in her eyes.

"You see, Max, I've omitted to get married. And now I'm thirty-one."

"Plus," he corrected gravely. "Thirty-one," she continued firmly, "and, though it's been great fun—I'm, at once I realized that I'm an old maid."

"No," he replied. "I didn't know she had been away."

The other day her mother overheard her telling a story to Bobby Davis, a neighbor. It was a very interesting story, it related with very suspense, and the adventures of Mollie on an airship. Now Mollie's mother knew very well that the child had never seen an airship. In her life, so she called her away from Bobby Davis and began to talk to her.

"Mollie, don't you know that you make mother very unhappy by telling such awful stories?" she asked. Mollie hung her head and said nothing. "Don't you know what happened to Annabel and Sapphira?" the mother continued. And Mollie looked up brightly.

"Oh, yes," she said. "I know all about them. They were struck down for lying. I saw them being carried into the corner drug store." Chicago Journal.

"Yes, I guess it does," answered the departing diner.

"Well, sir, the gentleman who sat at this table before you came in gave me a fifty cent tip, sir."

"Ah, indeed? And you think there may be a chance that he'd come back tomorrow? I doubt it. Good night!" Toledo Leader.

MISS GRACYN PACKER.

The chief object of interest to the 500 first cabin passengers who sailed recently from New York on the Clyde liner Mohawk for Jacksonville was a young woman wearing a blue serge uniform with short skirt, and navy cap, who stood on the promenade deck forward on the starboard side waiting for the gangway to be taken down.

She was the last improvement in wireless operation, Captain Kemble said—Miss Gracyn Packer of Jacksonville will have charge of the Mohawk's wireless room on the trip to Jacksonville and back. She is the first woman to take this post on the ship, coastwise or otherwise. If the experiment proves a success the company will put women on their other vessels, the officials say.

Domestic Superstitions.

If when washing dishes you forget an article it is a sign you will bear of a wedding.

If you sing while making bread you will cry before it is eaten.

If your apron becomes untied it is an indication that somebody is speaking of you.

To forget to put coffee in the coffee pot is the sign of a coming gift.

To accidentally place the teakettle on the stove with the spout toward the back is a sign of company.

If a coal of fire falls on the floor it is a sign a stranger is coming to see you.

If after sweeping a room the broom is accidentally left in a corner stranger will visit the house that day.

Irish M.P.'s Cheap Election.

MYSTERIOUS DREAMS.

Phantasies of the Night That Have Caused a Sensation.

The interest in the general election in the British Isles gave way to the sensation caused by the evidence given by Mr. Claude Sawyer in the Warfall case.

Mr. John Dickinson, who conducted the Board of Trade inquiry into the mysterious disappearance of this liner between Durban and Cape Town last June, said at the close, "I heartily congratulate you, Mr. Sawyer, on being alive and being here to give evidence."

Mr. Sawyer told that three or four days before the ill-fated vessel reached Durban, he had "a dream, which was most unusual." He had booked a first-class passage from Sydney to Cape Town by the Warfall, and he seems to have left anxiously before leaving Australian waters. Three times he had a dreaming vision of a man in a peculiar dress, who was holding in his right hand a bloody sword.

"The second time it came, I thought, 'I will know it again'; and the third time I looked at it so intently that I could almost design it, sword and all, even now. Next day I mentioned the dream to a gentleman, and he said, 'It's warning.' Then I began to think why I should be warned, and I was anxious to leave the ship."

He left it at Durban. Perhaps the strangest story of a dream at sea is that told by George Burrow in the opening pages of "The Bible in Spain." "I was bound for Lisbon. We passed Cape Finisterre, and, standing farther out to sea, suddenly lost sight of land. On the morning of the 15th the sea was very rough, and a remarkable circumstance occurred. I was on the forecastle, discoursing with two of the sailors. One of them, who had just left his hammock, said: 'I have had a strange dream, which I do not much like, for, contained he, pointing to the mast, 'I dreamt that I fell into the sea from the cross-trees.' He was about to say that he was one of the crew besides myself."

A moment later the captain of the vessel, perceiving that the sailors were increasing, ordered the top-sails to be taken in, whereupon this man, with several others, instantly ran ashore, the yard was in the act of being hauled down, when a sudden gust of wind whirled it round with violence, and a man was struck down from the cross-tree into the sea, which was working like yeast below.

In a short time he emerged. I saw his head on the crest of a billow, and instantly recognized in the unfortunate man the sailor who a few moments before had related his dream. I shall never forget the look of agony he cast whilst the steamer hurried past him.

The poor fellow who perished in this singular manner was a young man of about twenty-seven, the only son of a widowed mother. He was the best sailor on board, and was beloved by all who were acquainted with him."

May Knight Women.

In olden days they were not so chary of recognizing feminine services. The abbesses of great nunneries used to be knights, and even now there is a charming young French woman, who, though unmarried, is a countess by her own right by reason of being the Chanoinesse of a religious order.

At present in England there is something anomalous in the fact that man takes all the titles, stars, and ribbons, as well as place, power, and money, and allows the women folk to toil all their lives at inferior salaries and with no hope even of those ornamental rewards, such as coronets and orders, to which human nature is so persistently attached.

It has been whispered, though, that the two, as the circulating library and the Mayors of English towns, will be knighted during this coronation year, precisely as their masculine counterparts will receive the honor at the hands of King George.

The idea should be persistently kept on, as the circulating library and a rumor may lead to the foundation of some order—with a title attached—which can be bestowed on eminent women, whether married, single or widows.

Reprobate's Disturbed Slumber.

Dr. Armstrong Robinson, Dean of Westminster, who has been transferred to the Deanery of Wells, Somerset, a position which will not entail such a loss of his health as life in the Metropolis, was the last canon appointed by the late Lord Salisbury, and the first to gain preferment under Mr. Balfour's regime as Prime Minister.

Dr. Robinson is a scholar of the first rank, and is an impressive preacher. He does not mince his words when he wishes to drive home a point, and beneath a somewhat austere appearance there lurks a refreshing capacity for humor.

One of his best stories is about an old reprobate who had decided to repent, and announced to everyone that whatever wrong he had done should be made right. So one of the villagers to whom he owed a big sum of money, went round to his cottage at midnight to demand it. "But what time is it?" said the other, "to wake me up? Why not wait until to-morrow?" asked the old sinner. "I'll wait," said the other, "to avoid the crash."

Success doesn't "happen." It is organized, pre-empted, captured by concentrated common sense.

"The second time it came, I thought, 'I will know it again'; and the third time I looked at it so intently that I could almost design it, sword and all, even now. Next day I mentioned the dream to a gentleman, and he said, 'It's warning.' Then I began to think why I should be warned, and I was anxious to leave the ship."

He left it at Durban. Perhaps the strangest story of a dream at sea is that told by George Burrow in the opening pages of "The Bible in Spain." "I was bound for Lisbon. We passed Cape Finisterre, and, standing farther out to sea, suddenly lost sight of land. On the morning of the 15th the sea was very rough, and a remarkable circumstance occurred. I was on the forecastle, discoursing with two of the sailors. One of them, who had just left his hammock, said: 'I have had a strange dream, which I do not much like, for, contained he, pointing to the mast, 'I dreamt that I fell into the sea from the cross-trees.' He was about to say that he was one of the crew besides myself."

A moment later the captain of the vessel, perceiving that the sailors were increasing, ordered the top-sails to be taken in, whereupon this man, with several others, instantly ran ashore, the yard was in the act of being hauled down, when a sudden gust of wind whirled it round with violence, and a man was struck down from the cross-tree into the sea, which was working like yeast below.

In a short time he emerged. I saw his head on the crest of a billow, and instantly recognized in the unfortunate man the sailor who a few moments before had related his dream. I shall never forget the look of agony he cast whilst the steamer hurried past him.

The poor fellow who perished in this singular manner was a young man of about twenty-seven, the only son of a widowed mother. He was the best sailor on board, and was beloved by all who were acquainted with him."

Domestic Superstitions.

If when washing dishes you forget an article it is a sign you will bear of a wedding.

If you sing while making bread you will cry before it is eaten.

If your apron becomes untied it is an indication that somebody is speaking of you.

To forget to put coffee in the coffee pot is the sign of a coming gift.

To accidentally place the teakettle on the stove with the spout toward the back is a sign of company.

If a coal of fire falls on the floor it is a sign a stranger is coming to see you.

If after sweeping a room the broom is accidentally left in a corner stranger will visit the house that day.

Irish M.P.'s Cheap Election.

With the exception of the returning officer's fee, Mr. McVeagh's election as Nationalist M.P. for South Down cost him nothing. At a meeting to celebrate his success, he told his supporters that they had achieved victory without expending a copper farthing on the campaign.

HEALTHY CHILDREN ARE A BLESSING

Healthy babies are good babies and the good baby is a blessing in every home. Nothing can give the mother or father more pleasure than to see baby play. Every movement is watched with delight; every new word spoken brings pride to the fond parents. It is only the sickly baby that makes home wretched and mothers, it is not baby's fault when he is sick. You are the one to blame. Perhaps you give him candies, cakes and other food which his little stomach is unable to digest. Then when he is cross and sullen you give him some "soothing" mixtures to quiet him. That is wrong—remember his little stomach is not as strong as the grown persons, and also remember that every spoonful of "soothing" mixture you give him only does him more injury—it does not remove the cause of his fretfulness—it merely does him into an unnatural sleep.

What is needed to make baby healthy and happy is Baby's Own Tablets—a medicine with a guarantee of safety. About thirty years ago Dr. J. C. McCormick, West St. Peter, P.E.I., writes: "We have used Baby's Own Tablets with good results. They are certainly a blessing for mothers that have cross sickly babies. They sweeten the stomach; give refreshing sleep and make baby fat and healthy."

FRANK MILLER TELLS WHY HE RECOMMENDS DODD'S
KIDNEY PILLS

He used them for Rheumatism, Heart Disease and Lumbago, and they went right to the root of his troubles.

Rikmunk, B.C. (Special)—Frank Miller, action foreman on the railroad here, whose work exposes him to all kinds of weather, has discovered that Dodd's Kidney Pills are sovereigns for these Kidney ills that almost invariably follow neglected colds.

"For four years I suffered from Lumbago, Heart Disease and Rheumatism, brought on from a cold," says Mr. Miller, "and I got the very best results from using Dodd's Kidney Pills. I freely recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from these diseases."

Short and to the point, that statement, isn't it? But it is just like Dodd's Kidney Pills. They go right to the point. They cure the kidneys. Healthy kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood means good circulation and renewed life and energy all over the body.

Thus Dodd's Kidney Pills not only cure disease. They tone up the whole body and make a man feel that he has been given a new lease of life. That's why people all over Canada are shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

A girl likes to have proposals, so the won't have to fit so much about having them anyhow.

Gladstone and the Heckler.
Mr. Gladstone was altogether intolerant of the heckler. During his last Midlothian campaign, he was questioned by Sir (then Mr.) John Usher of Norton, who had once been Gladstone's chairman of committee, on the subject of the Irish question, which sundered so many political friendships. To one or two inquiries a curt reply was given. "Am I to understand," Mr. Usher was beginning, "Understand!" The old statesman leaped to his feet. "I am responsible for the understanding that the Almighty has put in this skull of mine," tapping his forehead. "I am not responsible," pointing his finger at the questioner, "for the understanding that He has put in that skull of yours." The effect of this rebuke was overwhelming. Mr. Usher sank speechless into his seat.—Westminster Gazette.

What Carlyle Wrote of Tennyson.
Tennyson in his prime was thus described by Thomas Carlyle to Ralph Waldo Emerson on Aug. 5, 1844: "One of the finest looking men in the world. A great shock of rough, dusty dark hair; bright, laughing, hazel eyes; massive aquiline face—most manly, yet most delicate; a pale brown complexion, almost Indian looking; clothes cynically loose, free and easy; and a voice of such a quality and range as to be almost unearthly. His voice is musically metallic, fit for loud laughter and piercing wail and all that may lie between; speech and song are free and pleasant. I do not meet in these late decades such company over a pipe."

Bravery and Poverty.
To be able to look cheerfully and hopefully through clouds of poverty and distress is an accomplishment bestowed upon every true and brave man, and no matter how poor or humble her home may be, the magic power of smiles can brighten its shadows and lighten its cares. Upon the troubled mind of a feeling husband a wife's smile falls like a sunbeam and a flower, and how much more beautiful it makes the face that wears it than a frown! When a wife and mother, forgetting sorrows and hardships, smiles away her tears, there is a loveliness in the act that speaks to a man's heart more eloquently than words.

Oh, the money we spent, and the plans that we laid
And the wonderful things that we bought!
There's toys that are cunningly, skillfully made
But she seems not to give them a thought.

She was pleased when she woke and discovered them there,
But never a one of us guessed
That it isn't the splendor that makes a gift rare.
She likes her rag dolly the best.

TWO LIONS AT BAY.

Thrilling Experience of an English Music Hall Comedian.

Stage fright of the sort that afflicted Whit Cunliffe, at one time a prominent stage manager in music halls, is not avoidable. Fortunately also it is not common. At a place where he was engaged in Birmingham one of the attractions of the lion show, some of the beasts being really wild and untamed. Nearly the whole stage was taken up with the setting of the animal show.

"Just as I was going on," said Cunliffe in telling of the incident, "I heard a rushing sound and confused shouting, and some one slammed an iron gate. I heard a voice say: 'Just in time, he was nearly there.' My music was starting, so I had not time to enquire. I went on the stage."

"In a moment I heard ominous growls and savage snarls, mixed with much whip-cracking and strenuous breathing. I am never fond of a wild animal show, and I felt distinctly nervous that night. The cloth behind me sagged and away, and then to my horror suddenly in the wings I saw the huge head and front of a lion."

"I was singing a song called 'I Would, which had a lot of short verses, and I sang them in a running cold. I watched the lion. It seemed to advance slowly, and its hoarse growls uttered in a truly horrible way. I could not go off that side without passing it, so I prepared to make my exit with haste."

"Turning round, I was to see another lion on the other side."

"I was caught like a mouse in a trap. I saw the lion's stage of the lion, and I dared not show my discomfiture to the audience. There was only one thing for me to do—sing. So I sang in desperation, hoping that some one would come and take the lions away. They told me afterwards that I sang nineteen verses, but I think that was unduly long."

"I wondered how long it would take those two brutes to make up their minds to come to the full place of the footlights, and I had just prepared to leap into the stalls, regardless of the consequences, when I heard the hoarse voice of the stage hands say, 'Ere, Bill, these two chaps are too far forward. Give a 'and with 'em.' The lions were then taken between the two lions they lifted them bodily. They were paper mache."

Two Wordsworth Anecdotes.
A correspondent of The Spectator (London) writes of the anecdote of Wordsworth. "The scornful pity felt by an old gardener for Darwin, who, as he told among the idle rich, reminds me of the anecdote which I have somewhere come across about the similarly unproductive Wordsworth."

An old laborer near Rydal, who had often seen the poet, had been struck by his odd way of spouting his verses, and he told me that he was thus "holding his potter," he seemed to the peasant to be quite deaf, but his manner was so good for actual use, he could sometimes say "Good morning, John," just like anyone else. This may be supplemented by one of the Wordsworths, who came to me on good authority. Some thirty years ago an aged lady who in her girlhood had known the poet, told me that he once showed her a daisy besprinkled with dew and applied to it the lines which I quote from memory:

Small service is true service while it lasts;
Of friends, however humble, scorn not once;
The daisy by the shadow that it casts
Protects the lingering dewdrop from the sun.

I rather gathered that the stanza was composed on the spot, but it is possible that it had been written before, and was drawn from the poet by the object-illustration. This incident seems to me worth mentioning, as it awakened a special interest in a grandson of Wordsworth, who told me that it was always, and quite the only one of his grandfathers' poems the occasion of which had been known to him.

A Bust of Rolfe.
The bust of the late Mr. C. S. Rolfe, upon which the sculptor, Mr. W. C. May, has been engaged, under the supervision of Lady Langstock, has now been finally approved. The bust, which is a looking glass as a remarkably successful study of the distinguished aviator and motorist, is borne upon a four-sided pedestal, each of the four sides being ornamented with a panel descriptive of a notable event in Mr. Rolfe's career. These represent: The Paris to Sherborne (Norfolk) balloon voyage, starting for Calais (aeroplane flight); Paris to Berlin (motor race); Dover to Calais and back (aeroplane flight); The race of the bust (aerial). Instead of being left in the rough, as is usual, is finished with a modeling of roses and inscribed with the name "Charles Stewart Rolfe," together with a Latin phrase prophesying that the aviator will be renowned to posterity. Mr. May, a well-known member, was the sculptor employed on the national Armada Memorial erected by the nation on Plymouth Hoe.

The Unionist Organizer.
At the Conservative Central Office, Westminster, sits the man, Mr. James Percival Hughes, who organizes and directs the British Tory forces. Mr. Hughes became chief agent of the Tory party in 1907, and the arduousness of the work may be gathered from the fact that he once confessed that he barely found time for a daily walk. Mr. Hughes has had a varied career, ready to the late Col. Fred Burnaby, gallant soldier and pioneer aviator, and after the latter's death was left trustee of his estates in Ireland on behalf of the colonel's only son, who has distinguished himself as the inventor of the latest motor-rail high-speed system. Then Mr. Hughes was called to the Bar, but his high reputation as an organizer and his fondness for politics won him to his present responsible position.

Warren, Ont. Feb. 11th.
I had a horse that had a spavin for a long time and I had tried nearly every kind of medicine when a neighbor told me to use Kennell's Spavin Cure, which I did and it acted wonderfully.

Kennell's Spavin Cure is no untried experiment, but is the world's standard remedy for all swellings. Such Swellings and Lameness in horse and man.

Lille Notes

An accident of a serious nature occurred on Friday last to Dominico Deckerio, a helper, aged thirty, at the main chute in connection with Bear Valley No. 1 mine, Lille. The unfortunate fellow fell a distance of about 200 feet, and when found was lodged against the bankhead at the bottom of the chute. When extricated it was found that he was badly cut and bruised about the head and body. He was immediately conveyed to the Lille hospital in the company's caboose, where he is being attended to by Doctor Snyder. It was only the second shift he had worked, having come from Hillcrest a few days ago.

Correspondence

Lille, Alta., March 6th, 1911.
To Editor Coleman Miner.

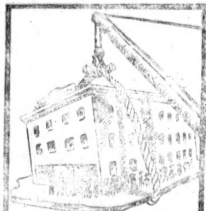

Dear Sir:—In your last week's issue I saw the report of a carnival which was held here. I wish to contradict the statement made in your paper, as there were no judges, therefore no prizes were given. The person who sent in the report was not authorized to do so by the rink committee. Thanking you for making this correction in your valuable paper.

Yours truly,
Member of Rink Committee.

Miners and Operators Unable to Agree

The sub-committee of the miners and operators meeting in Calgary are still endeavoring to come to some arrangement on the closed shop question. Six days have been used up in the negotiations so far but without any progress being made. The time for completing the new agreement expires the end of the month, and if something definite is not arrived at before that time it is hard to tell what the result may be.
